To better understand what items are covered under the Builder's Limited Warranty and by the Bonded Builder Warranty Group, please refer to the information included with your final walkthrough or closing documents. You executed and were provided with copies of the one-year builder warranty, which is limited to workmanship and materials for covered items, and a Bonded Builder booklet or sample, as well as, a home maintenance manual. These warranties do not cover cosmetic repairs unless noted prior to closing and/ or occupancy of the home and must have been noted on the Closing Agreement. Your home warranties do not cover damage or malfunction due to normal wear and tear or customer use and warrant only materials and labor provided by the builder and specified in the original Residential Construction Contract, or, in a fully executed change order.

Further explanation of the limited warranties for years one through ten can be found in the Bonded Builder Complete Warranty Document. Structural warranties cover only load bearing components of the home and do not include such items as doors, windows, exterior veneers and interior finishes. However, most structural components are warranted by the manufacturer or supplier and warranties vary in length and coverage. If you are unable to locate these warranties, you should contact our office for assistance. Specific warranty items are defined in the Bonded Builder Complete Warranty Document.

Also included in the BBCWD are the General Warranty Provisions, which define covered and excluded items. Among the exclusions are deficiencies or defects not included in or credited from the contract price, Improvements installed after completion of the home, or by the Owner, are not covered. Any damage caused by the Owner's negligence or failure to provide proper maintenance is excluded, as are all drainage deficiencies, landscaping, non-structural concrete or fences. For a complete listing of exclusions, please refer to General Warranty Provisions, page 2. For a complete list of covered items refer to Construction Performance Standards.
